

ULI HINES STUDENT COMPETITION

The 14th annual ULI graduate student urban design and development competition, sponsored by Gerald D. Hines

CHALLENGE YOURSELF TO CREATE THRIVING COMMUNITIES

WINNING TEAM RECEIVES $50,000; FINALIST TEAMS RECEIVE $10,000

Since 2002, the ULI Hines Student Competition has challenged students to collaborate across disciplines and imagine a better built environment. To compete, form a team with four other graduate students to devise a development program for the selected real site in a North American city, providing designs, market-based financial data, and related narratives.

This year's host city and competition site will be announced when the competition begins on January 11, 2016.

- Four teams receive an all-expense-paid trip to the host city for their final presentation and selection of the winner.
- Team applications due: Monday, December 7, 2015.
- Competition dates: January 11-25, 2016.
